

Coaching Workspace

A short guide for agents · ValveMan / Welsford

WHAT THIS IS

A private view of your own recorded calls. The app listens to a call, writes down what was said, and gives you feedback you can act on — what went well, one thing to try next time, and the exact words you might use instead.

GETTING IN

Go to ringcentralcoachingai.vercel.app and sign in with your ValveMan email address. If you have not been given a password yet, ask your manager.

THE TWO THINGS YOU CAN DO

1. Coach my day. One write-up covering a whole day of calls — the habit that keeps showing up, rather than a note about one conversation. This is the main thing the tool is for. It reads a handful of calls from the day and tells you how many it read.

2. Coach a single call. Pick one conversation and get feedback on just that one. Useful when you already know which call you want to look at.

Nothing is reviewed until you ask for it. Calls are not coached automatically.

1 · Your day

The first screen after signing in. Everything here follows the day picked on the calendar.

- 1 Viewing as — who you are signed in as. You only ever see calls made from your own phone extension.
- 2 Drawn from N of M calls — how much of the day the summary actually read. If it says 0 of 3, nothing has been reviewed yet.
- 3 Coach my day — reviews up to five calls spread across the day and writes one summary. Takes about two minutes. Once there is a summary, a Review more of this day link appears to go deeper.
- 4 The calendar — pick any day. The small number under a date is how many calls that day are worth reviewing. See page 4.
- 5 Show my calls — lists that day's calls on the right, so you can pick one.
- 6 Selected day — the day everything on the page refers to.

2 · One conversation

Further down the same page. The left list holds every call that has been coached; clicking one opens its feedback on the right.

The screenshot displays the Coaching Workspace interface. On the left, a list of conversations is shown under the heading 'CONVERSATIONS' with a 'recent first' sort order. The list includes four entries for 'Dylan Lavern' with dates and times, and status labels like 'analyzed', 'Ready', and 'Pending'. A red box labeled '7' highlights the list header, and a red box labeled '8' highlights the 'Ready' status label. On the right, the detailed coaching view for a selected conversation is shown under the heading 'COACHING READY' with a 'resolved' status. It features a title 'A useful conversation to revisit', a timestamp, a video player (labeled '10'), and tabs for 'Coaching' and 'Transcript' (labeled '11'). The coaching content includes sections like 'Keep doing this' with a 'Professional Demeanor' tip, and 'One opportunity to try next time' with a specific coaching point. A red box labeled '9' highlights the top right area of the coaching view, and a red box labeled '11' highlights the 'Transcript' tab.

- 7 Conversations — every call of yours that has been coached, newest first. Click any row to open it. The list scrolls on its own.
- 8 Ready / Pending — Ready means the feedback is written. Pending means it has not been analysed yet; open it and press Get coaching for this call.
- 9 The coaching — what went well, one thing to try next time with the words to use, and further down, notes on each part of the call with the quote they came from.
- 10 The recording — press play to hear the call.
- 11 Coaching / Transcript — Transcript shows what was said, line by line. Click a timestamp to jump the recording to that moment.

3 · Reference

READING THE CALENDAR

- 5 A number — that many calls that day are worth reviewing.
- A green dot — some calls that day have already been coached.
- A dash — you took no coachable calls that day.
- A middot — that day has not been checked yet. Open it to find out.
- Greyed out — a date in the future.

WHY ARE SOME CALLS MISSING?

Calls shorter than 90 seconds are left out — transfers, voicemail drops, misdials and quick lookups. There is no conversation in them to coach, and feedback drawn from silence is worse than none.

COMMON QUESTIONS

How long does it take?

One call is about 35 seconds. A whole day is about two minutes.

Why does “Coach my day” only read five calls?

Five spread across the day is enough to see a habit repeat, without transcribing every call. The summary always says how many it read. Press Review more of this day to add more.

Who else can see this?

You see only your own calls. Managers and administrators can see their team's. The per-call view includes a 0–5 rating on each part of the call alongside the written notes.

I coached a call — where did it go?

Into the Conversations list at the bottom of the page, at the top since it is the newest.

Something looks wrong.

The wording is written by an AI from an automatic transcript, so it can misread a word or a name. Treat it as a prompt for a conversation, not a verdict.
